WSU gets lost in political shuffle

by Dan Ruda

Winona State will not be receiving the $5.7 million it requested this year from the Minnesota State Legislature for capital improvements.

The $5.7 million was only a small portion of a $221.3 million bonding bill which was recently defeated in the House of Representatives.

WSU President Robert Hanson feels the defeat of the bill was "a very strong disappointment." He says the bill was voted down for "entirely political reasons" and the "benefits of the bill were not considered."

The benefits for WSU included $326,000 of site work to remove the streets which run within the WSU campus, and $5.4 million for the remodeling of Somson, Watkins and Phelps Halls.

Since Somson Hall was built in 1924 the building does not meet the requirements of today's laws and safety standards. For this reason, Hanson feels the remodeling of Somson ($3.9 million) to meet fire codes and handicapped laws was just one of the urgent requests which the legislature turned down.

Hanson says that the $5.7 million that WSU requested was not one of the controversial issues which led to the defeat of the bill in the house. Both the house and the senate subcommittees had approved portions of the WSU's capital improvement request before the bonding bill was voted down in the house.

The bonding bill is a biennial bill which comes up once every two years. However Hanson says that since many of the portions of the bill are urgent, there might be enough political pressure to bring the bill before the legislature next year.

Date set for Sun Day

Next Thursday will be Sun Day.

May 1 is a nation wide event designed to bring attention to what many feel should be this nation's prime energy source—Solar Power.

During Sun Day there will be solar exhibits, a solar film fest, and a sun carnival. Food service will be serving the dinner meal under the sun while theatre groups will perform Sun Day skits.

Also that day, folk guitarist Quinton Humphreys will perform and there will be experts talking about making solar energy a reality.

Corporate alternatives discussed

by John Hotzfield

It was a day set aside for looking at problems that are created by corporations. And there are many, according to the people who organized and attended Big Business Day at WSU last Thursday, April 17.

Big Business Day, which was sponsored by WSU's local chapter of MPIRG (Minnesota Public Interest Research Group), was designed to "educate students on how big business could be controlled," according to Dee Dee Kalish who is a chairperson for the local chapter of MPIRG.

Jim Trowbridge, who is also an MPIRG local board member, echoed those feelings by saying that the day was designed to draw attention to big businesses and whether they're acting responsibly towards the consumer. Kalish answered that when she charged that big businesses act "irresponsibly to labor, the environment and third world countries."

The day was highlighted with a forum that featured six speakers. Evelyn Roehl, a Coordinator-Researcher of the Food Learning Center at Famine Foods Co-op in Winona, talked about boycotting unethical corporations.

Roehl said that corporations do have a lot of control of what we consume on a daily basis. She exemplified this by going through a mythical day for a Winona consumer. Out of all the items that would have been purchased or used during this day, 31 of them came from Beatrice Foods, a corporation in Chicago.

Beatrice Foods, according to Roehl, produces over 9,000 different products (anything from airstream trailers to bread to Fischer nuts) that are consumed in 28 different countries and has an annual income of over $7½ billion.

Ellery Foster, who is the Coordinator of the Free Trade Exchange in Winona, said that everyone is in "hock" to corporations. Foster feels that people should use a barter system called a free trade exchange as an alternative to corporations. Through this system, which he is currently practicing, people would exchange goods and services instead of money.

Vince O'Connor, a Mass Communications major at WSU, charged unethical corporations with putting money first and people second. He feels that stricter controls should be levied on corporations by the government.

Dr. Hunter, an Associate Professor of Business and Administration and Economics, Ken Peterson, an attorney and an Executive Director for MPIRG and Monte Bute, a free-lance writer and MPIRG Senior Organizer also spoke at the forum.

MPIRG also showed a filmstrip, entitled Guess Who's Coming To Breakfast, at noon in the Smog. The film showed all of the products we consume daily that come from corporations. SOUL, (Save Our Unwanted Lives), sponsored an anti-nuclear slide show in the afternoon.

"We didn't reach the people we should have," responded Kalish. She said that the people who attended activities during Big Business Day already supported MPIRG's efforts. "We were trying to convert the converted." Kalish did go on to say that "the whole thing (Big Business Day) was a success."

Incorporation called key to lobbying effort

by Dan Ruda

Why would a student organization like the Minnesota State University Students Association (MSUSA) want to form a legal corporation?

It's important, says Russ Larson MSUSA Chairperson, because incorporation will "provide a bigger and better lobbying program to enable students to voice their concerns and opinions to various policy making bodies within the state."

Larson points out that the drinking age, tuition costs, and collective bargaining are just a few of the issues which are decided by the legislature that directly affect students.

MSUSA is recognized by the State University Board as the principle agency for student participation in university policy development.

At a conference meeting at Winona State, MSUSA voted to incorporate as a non-profit organization which would allow them more "financial flexibility" to expand their lobbying program and consequently the influence students have in the state legislature.

While MSUSA presently has a lobbyist, (Karen Markert, a student from Winona State), she does not receive a salary.

Larson says that MSUSA lobbyists are students who receive internship credit and a stipend of $200 for the work they do at the state capital during the year.

MSUSA's budget for this last year was $925 which Larson says is not enough to pay a lobbyist a full time or even part time salary. The organization receives its money from the student activity fees of the seven state universities.

While MSUSA presently has a student at the state capital lobbying for student concerns, Larson feels a full time lobbyist who is in constant touch with legislators from year to year could be more effective than a student intern who changes every school year.

"Experience has shown that it takes more than a year to get an intern familiar with the legislative process." "But," continues Larson, "if we incorporate we can hire a full time lobbyist who could lobby for student concerns year after year."

"The bottom line of the whole thing," according to Larson, is that the state university Board defines student activity fees as state money, and the State Ethical Practices Board has said the state money cannot be used for lobbying.

He adds that if MSUSA forms a non-profit organization, the money it receives from students will no longer be considered state money, and MSUSA will be able to hire a lobbyist who could more effectively voice student concerns to the state legislature.

MSUSA has only begun the paper work for incorporation. Part of the package includes a different funding fee for MSUSA. Larson says two systems are being considered. One would cost students 30 cents a year and the other 50 cents. At the present time, Winona State students are paying two and a half cents a year per student toward the operation of MSUSA.

"Either way," Larson comments, "you have to go through a series of public hearings." He adds that the hearings would be necessary for student input, and to show the state University Board that there is student support for MSUSA.

Vietnam vets seek support

by Tim Connelly

It has been tough getting people to listen. Consequently, the feelings are bottled up to brew and ferment inside.

The United States pulled the last combat troops out of South Vietnam eight years ago. Saigon fell to North Vietnam five years ago. But for many who went off to that war, the battle rages on—personal battles both large and small.

Stress, anger, disappointment, flashbacks and discouragement at being considered suckers are only a few of the complaints Vietnam Veterans have.

close to the scene began advocating special counseling for Vietnam-era veterans who needed extra help to overcome the trauma of fighting an unpopular war and then returning to an uncertain homecoming. Veterans have felt that there has not been a good place to go for help.

A spokesperson at Winona State University's Veterans Office indicated about 200 veterans are registered with that office. However, the number of Vietnam vets at WSU is 50. "Most of the vets that come into our office are only interested in money problems, not any other type of personal problem," the spokesperson said.

Willis Tulare, Winona County Veterans Service Officer, said there are more than 600 Vietnam veterans in the county, but only a few have asked for any type of help for personal problems related to the war.

The Hiawatha Valley Mental Health Center located in Winona sees a number of veterans for alcohol and mental problems, but a spokesman said there would be no way of determining who served in Vietnam.

So where does a Vietnam veteran living in Winona seek help for war related problems? The answer may be in a new program signed into law by President Carter last June.

The Veterans Administration's newest program is a unique outreach activity aimed at Vietnam-era veterans with readjustment problems.

The Vet Center, on University Avenue in St. Paul, is one of 87 to be opened across the country. The center officially opened last month, but patients have been coming to the center since late December.

The program provides for informal, low-key psychological counseling for those veterans having difficulty reentering civilian life. The centers are housed in storefronts, away from established VA facilities. The centers are as free of conventional government regulations and red tape as possible.

Eligibility for help isn't based on a medical examination or diagnosis.

Ed Lord, a trained counselor at the St. Paul center, said the heart of the Vet Center program "will be counseling to give assistance without what some people regard as the stigma of a psychiatric diagnosis."

"If we find it is advisable, and the veteran requests it, we can supplement our own services with private psychological care or by admission to the Veterans Administration's regular mental health program."

Choir performance

Winona State University will host the Central High School (Norwood-Young America, MN) Choir for a performance on April 28 at 3:00 p.m. The concert, to be held in the Performing Arts Center, will feature the Concert Choir, the Swing Choir, and selected smaller ensembles.

The Senior High Choir, which is made up of 72 students from grades 9-12, will perform a variety of music dating from the Renaissance to the present. The Swing Choir was recently chosen "Class B Outstanding Show Choir" at the Ellis Street Singer Clinic at Mankato State University. A barbershop quartet will be among the ensembles featured in Monday's performance.

Tom Erdmann has been the director of choral music at Central High for 7 years. He is a graduate of Dickinson State College in North Dakota and has done further study at St. Cloud State University and at the MacPhail Center in Minneapolis.

The Vet Center is manned by four people, experts specially trained to counsel Vietnam-era veterans and their families, on problems resulting from the veterans' service. In addition to individual, group and family counseling, team members will assist veterans in career and educational development.

"Basically," Lord said, "the program is a no-frills, low-key approach to helping that relatively small group of young Vietnam veterans who have failed to get the help they need because they are turned off by bureaucratic red tape and long waiting lines."

"We will be trying to give help to a bunch of veterans who, for many reasons, have not been able to put their Vietnam experiences behind them."

Lord said, on the average, 15 persons are seen each day at the center, and the load has been high enough for him to request additional help.

Since the center is located in the Twin Cities, the majority of men treated at the center are from the Metro area and only a few people are coming in from outside Minnesota.

Lord indicated that some type of program is trying to be developed to get the help to the veterans living throughout the state, "but that adds up to a lot of dollars." He said "If a veteran in Winona for example is having difficulties and can't make it to St. Paul help can be provided through local health agencies."

A governmental sponsored study, released last fall showed forty percent of the veterans studied still endure major emotional disorders. Seventy-five percent complain of readjustment problems in their jobs and marriages.

The findings are devastating enough, but they surface at least a decade after they were obvious to anyone—psychiatrists, family members, social workers—who took the time to listen to the veterans. The weight of this ten year delay has itself become a crushing burden.

"Forget that," Lord said, "Let's just try to regain our lost men."

Constitution approval pending

by Laura Spanton

Student Senate President Steve Erickson met with President Hanson last Wednesday to discuss the revisions of the Student Senate Constitution. Once approved by President Hanson, the constitution will be presented for student approval on April 30th.

"I feel the Legislative Affairs Committee should be an official standing committee," said Steve Erickson. He explained that an official standing committee is a permanent committee of Student Senate that handles delegated responsibilities. In the past, the responsibilities of the Legislative Affairs Committee were handled by the Student Services Committee.

chairperson of the Student Activity Fund Committee, is another highlight of this year's revision. Steve Erickson said, "This will ease some of the responsibilities of the president and vice-president."

April 30th is also the day for elections of perspective Student Senate members for the 1980-81 school year. Twenty-one openings are available. Three senators-at-large, two graduate senators, and six senators from each class will be elected.

Applications are available in the Student Senate Office. The deadline for the return of the applications is April 29th.

The "dangers" of liberal arts

Political science instructors spend considerable time discussing Communism, economics instructors familiarize all their students with Marxist economic theory, and history instructors verse students on the events of the Russian Revolution. Even at Winona State, there is a course entitled "Soviet Russia."

Commie pinkoes, that's what everybody turns into nowadays at college.

That's absurd, of course, but there are some people who very nearly believe that. They believe that because students are made familiar with "dangerous" philosophies, they will adopt them. The one place where philosophies are adopted without question is, in fact, the educational system. The elementary and secondary educational system, not the university educational system.

For the first 18 years of life, the teaching philosophy in America is "what you don't know won't hurt you." For all a sophomore in high school knows, Karl is just another of the Marx brothers, Plato is what you used to make clay sculptures with, and Adam Smith is a cough drop manufacturer.

Those views change in college, where the students who pursue any kind of liberal arts background find out the true identities of such people. Students are still subject to the individual prejudices of their teachers, but most professors do well in exposing students to a broad spectrum of philosophies and theories.

The people who criticize the liberal arts background in colleges would do well to remember that there are no teachers, at least at Winona State, who openly wave hammer and sickle flags (or the Stars and Stripes, for that matter), nor are there any secret members of the Josef Stalin Fan Club on the faculty. Students are simply introduced to ideas.

Most college students, in fact, would do better to expose themselves to more such ideas. Colleges are quickly becoming trade schools where students learn only how to do a job. The concern with "providing the student with an understanding and appreciation of the world", as one instructor puts it, is fading.

That some people don't wish to understand and appreciate the world is not in itself as bad as for those people to criticize others for wishing to understand and appreciate. Too many of those people resort to putting tags on serious students of the world, automatically labeling them Communists or "radicals" simply because they are familiar with a distinct school of thought. Often, no consideration is given to what the person's true point of view.

The labeling can vary from one pole to the exact opposite pole. To use an example, I can cite my own experience. There is a businessman in my hometown who accuses all journalists of being "socialists" (has he ever heard of William F. Buckley?), yet those same journalists can also be implicitly accused of being tools of big business, as one of this week's letters to the editor does. I prefer to think of myself as somewhere in the middle.

Smith runs for senate president

Fellow Students:

It is with much enthusiasm and pleasure and more importantly, without hesitation that I submit my name to you, the students of Winona State University, as a candidate for President of the WSU Student Senate.

I feel very strongly that the students at Winona State need to become more organized, more visible, and more credible. As your student body president I feel I can direct, manage and lead the students of the '80s toward these goals.

I've been actively involved in Student Senate since my freshman year, three years ago. I currently serve as co-chairperson of Academic Affairs. As co-chair and a two-year committee member of Academic Affairs I have actively lobbied for academic calendars which allow an Easter break and a spring break; I've worked on the general education revision committee; and am currently involved developing a class syllabi for general education courses.

As we enter the decade of the '80s and embark on new ideas, let us reflect on the past and put forth a new and revitalized effort for the future. The future is ours, the time is now.

Should you care to discuss any specific issues with me I can be found in the senate office daily from 7 a.m.-9 a.m.

On election day, Wednesday April 30, remember to vote for Dianne Smith for Student Senate President. I can become your voice for the '80's.

Dianne F. Smith

Voting insures quality

Students of Winona State University,

I hope everyone is aware of the fact that student government elections are a week from today. I would like to urge all students, in the course of the next week, to take a few minutes to review the qualifications of the candidates. In the past, Winona State University has had the best voter participation rate in the State University System. I am confident we can continue this tradition.

Why do I urge you to review the qualifications of the candidates? The answer is quite obvious: to make the best choice. But that's what's important, making a choice and voting!

Certain students comment that they would just as soon not bother with the hassle; or that it is nothing more than a popularity contest. There are other members of our student group who comment that student government is ineffectual. To these criticisms, I have a philosophical response and a gut level reaction. The philosophical response was plagiarized from a book of popular quotes, "Ignorance is a voluntary misfortune." My gut level reaction is BULLSHIT. (Those of you offended by vulgar comments please disregard the latter and remember the former).

The Student Senate as an organization, has its' ups and downs. We win some and we lose some. But in the long run, we are making significant progress. We are planning on publishing a list of achievements next month. I hope everyone has a chance to read it. You will then be able to judge our organization and see if the students are getting their moneys worth. That's right, the executive officers receive stipend from the Student Senate budget.

I wish we had enough money to give all the student senators some form of monetary reimbursement. They deserve it, but we can't afford it. We have to rely on responsible, conscientious, and genuinely concerned volunteers. Hour after hour after hour is spent sitting through long meetings, organizing, coordinating, planning and initiating change. I respect all of the WSU Student Senators, very much, for their dedication.

We must continue to attract this type of talent so we can continue to expand and strengthen our sphere of influence. The state legislature is one realm of that sphere. Our improvements in this area have been fantastic. We are establishing a positive identity with the state legislature, which we must continue to use, to voice our concerns, as the consumers of the product of higher education in the state of Minnesota.

We all have a vested interest in student government. Please recognize the responsibility you have to yourself, recognize our common identity as students and join in the process of affecting change. If you would like to go one step further in getting involved, we have senate applications available for the academic year 80-81. Please take a minute, next Wednesday, provide your input, and vote.

A dissenting opinion

Dear Editor:

This letter is written in retrospect from a graduating senior. I have spent four years at Winona State and through these past years as an insider in student governmental affairs and activities. I have learned how the wheels turn at this school and the State University System in general. Well, the wheels are not turning as smoothly as they could, and should be to run the machine.

Chancellor Hays, the ultimate and official voice for the State University System, has been asked to resign by the Inter-Faculty Organization (IFO) (Winonan April 9, 1980) because of his neglect in "advocating" for funding in the State University System.

The opposition to the IFO, a majority of students and administration, argue that it is not Chancellor Hays "responsibility to represent faculty concerns".

This does not make sense. How can anyone rationalize funding as solely a faculty concern? An increase or decrease in revenue will affect faculty, administration, and the System's reason for existence, the education of STUDENTS.

No one seems to be listening to what the faculty is actually saying. They are saying that the System needs a strong advocate for unity to show the public and especially the state legislature that there is another system of higher education besides the University of Minnesota. However, what else is the legislature to think when all three components of the State University System has lobbyists pushing for separate priorities of legislation; the faculty has their legislative director, Chancellor Hays lobbies for the State University Board, and the students have their MSUSA legislative representative.

The State University System can not continue with the three factions in competition with each other for funding: the Chancellor should be an advocate for the entire system. This disagreement can not so easily be disregarded as a "labor-management dispute", the IFO resolution is an announcement for the entire State University System to unify its resources to convince the public and the legislature that it should command the same attention, respect, and financial backing, as any other higher education system in the state.

Jeanine V. Semrad

has made a proposal to the administration to build offices or make room for the organizations that want office space.

This is not an unreasonable demand, especially since the student union's new addition was originally designed to house five student organization offices now occupied—three by student affairs, one by housing, and one by the international students.

The Coalition only wants what's best for the students and their organizations. The coalition sees the value of having the office of student affairs in the student union.

make reparation for their usurpation of student organizations offices by at least now (several years after the fact) providing office space to the organizations wanting it?

It's well within the power of the student body to take other more drastic measures if the administration chooses to ignore this plea for office space.

Any student or organization wanting to join the Coalition's drive for office space can contact Carl Simons or Nancy McCarthy.

Carl Simons
Steering Committee member for

Interested in finding out exactly what it is our administration is to be doing for us? The Student Senate office has job descriptions available for all administrators on the WSU campus. So if you want to know the duties of a particular administrator feel free to stop in the office and page through the descriptions and find out what they're all about!

Among the students at WSU who aren't apathetic and are involved in student organizations, a continual hindrance for some clubs has been the lack of office space.

The Coalition of Campus Clubs

But shouldn't the administration

Students/faculty lack public interest

Editor, Winonan:

Attending MPIRG's Big Business Day observance at WSU it was evident that public interest has a low priority in the lives of most of the students and faculty alike. The peak participation was at the evening session, amounting to maybe 25 students and faculty, after deducting 10 or so who were from off campus.

So it's pretty obvious that WSU is a private interest school that people attend to learn how to get ahead in the ratrace that big business has created for the people.

That the Winonan of the week buried the MPIRG story back on page 10 says something about the ball its eye is on. This was further indicated by inclusion with the same issue the Ford Motor Company's expensive magazine which no doubt helps pay the Winonan's costs. What a shame that a student newspaper cannot be free of the corrupting influence of such advertising.

Other than this, the most interesting thing for this writer was the evidence that the free trade idea was a new one for the MPIRG people who came down from the Twin Cities to participate in the panel discussion. Goes to show how successful big business and the economics departments of the universities have been in keeping this idea swept under the rug for the past half century since its practicality was demonstrated by thousands of unemployed during the great depression.

And how they keep under the rug also the fact that hundreds of private trade exchanges are using the free trade idea to enable their members to save money and avoid taxes. But never suggesting that this is a way in which the most destitute and needy could cope with the problems of inflation and unemployment.

In effect, what those unemployed did half a century ago was to get along without money by giving and receiving brownie points, recorded in a clearinghouse. This, in effect, is what the free trade exchange at 122 E. 2nd St. operates. The term brownie points is not used in these trade exchanges, but this is what the AVR's (acknowledgements of value received) amount to. It's a beautifully simple way for we the people to reduce our dependence on money business, which is the biggest big business of all.

Ellery Foster

Contemplate

by Cathy Blowers

The person you sit next to in classes, or pull up a chair with, or count on to loan you a buck, or drink a beer with, or trust the care of your goldfish to when you go away for the weekend, no doubt plays a part in your life.

It is so easy for us, wrapped up in our school work, our jobs and our interests to take the people who share a part of our lives for granted. We assume that they will always be there, that we will be there for them, and that these times will always be the same.

Of course we all intellectually realize that this is not the case. Circumstances change, people change, but it is not until the time of change draws near that the realization that we must part from those we care for hits our emotional gears and not just our old cranium.

Spring has sprung. With it comes an air of change. Graduation for some, a degree of change for all. Suddenly, excited as we may be about a change of pace, we are confronted by the humbling fact that we will have to part from the people who have played a part in our lives.

We find ourselves wishing we'd found more time in our schedules to enjoy our friends, wishing we had a little more time to adjust to that inevitable separation, hoping that lines of communication will remain open across the miles that divide us, hoping that we will grow, but not grow apart.

It can't be the same, once we leave. Distance is a natural separator of people, but it need not be one of great degree. There is no way to dissolve the sadness of parting by "promising to keep in touch," but we try to lessen the blows that way.

Parting hurts, but it must be done. There is no way to swallow all the memories of someone who has touched our lives, though we may try desperately to do just that.

A lot of us are facing the fears, excitement, sadness, frustration, challenge and insecurity that accompanies change. We can't look back and say, "I should have taken more time."

We can look to today and make the most of the time we have left.

It is so easy to take each other for granted, to say "please call back, I'm busy." We all do it. Perhaps we should start looking at the people who share our lives in a different light. Perhaps it is time to re-evaluate our priorities. Perhaps it is time to tell those people how much we have appreciated their presence. Perhaps it is time to realize the delicate finite qualities of our relationships as they presently exist. I do not mean to imply that once we walk out of Winona State this spring that our friendships will evaporate forever. I do mean to make you aware that in some capacity, however minute, they will change.

I can not stress hard enough the importance of where we place our priorities. While I realize that it is impossible to center all our hours around our relationships, I do know how easily we tend to take for granted that things that mean so much to us until it becomes too late.

I can tell you to treasure what you have, because it cannot last forever, but I know it is something each one of you will probably have to realize by individual experience. And I can hope that you can take a look around you and really feel in your heart the uniqueness and gift of people and enjoy them today, instead of wishing you had at the end of May.

Foreign exchange promotes opportunity

by Lori Menard

Snow, skiing, small shops and nighttime entertainment. These activities are all familiar to people in Minnesota, but they are also familiar to Oslo, Norway. According to Ola Rothe, Minnesota and his home country of Norway are very much alike.

Rothe is the foreign exchange student from Oslo who is attending WSU for the 1979-80 school year on the Oslo Exchange Program.

The Oslo Exchange Program gives a student from Winona State the opportunity to spend a year at the Oslo Teachers College in Oslo Norway. At the same time, a student at the Oslo College spends a year at WSU.

The new WSU constitution places more of the responsibility for operating the program in the hands of the students. A committee of both students and faculty help choose the student that will participate in the program for the following year. Once the student has been selected, the committee helps in preparations for a year in a foreign country.

According to the Minneapolis Tribune, of March 23, "an estimated 300,000 foreign students, more than double the number a decade ago, are enrolled in U.S. colleges and universities."

One third of these students are from the oil countries of the Middle East, Africa and Latin America, some spending American oil dollars on cars, clothes and entertainment in an attempt to become instant Americans. Other students come from poorer countries striving to survive and struggling for their wits.

Almost 5,000 foreign students have come to Minnesota, an increase of 27 percent this school year. In numbers and impact this new wave could compare to the wave of U.S. minority students in colleges in the 1960s. In fact, foreign students slightly outnumber U.S. blacks, Indians, Hispanics, and Asians in Minnesota colleges and universities.

When the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education (AACTE) was set up between foreign colleges, Winona State was one of the first 10 colleges to be included. The first Oslo exchange took place in 1961-62.

Since that time many have become involved in the Oslo Program. Families in both countries have opened their doors to exchange students.

Students who come to WSU are not only from Norway. According to Terri Markos, Director of the International Student Program, during the winter quarter there were approximately 95 students from foreign countries studying at WSU.

About 40 percent of the foreign students are from the Middle East. Iran and Nigeria are the homes of the largest portion of foreign students.

According to the Tribune, most of the colleges and universities are as unprepared for the foreign student as they were for the minority students. They lack the expertise to evaluate credentials, lack programs to serve special needs and social needs, and lack international scope in courses.

According to Markos, "most of these students are self-sponsored." Aid sometimes comes from the Venezuela Foundation, Saudi Arabia Mission or Nigeria Scholars.

Up until 1965, financial support for the Oslo Exchange Program about diamonds:

Clarity

A flawless diamond is extremely rare. Most diamonds contain natural imperfections or "inclusions" — tiny crystals of carbon or bubbles of gas from millions of years ago.

ArtCarved diamonds are selected for their clarity and brilliance. Any slight "inclusions" that may be present are discernible only under ten power magnification.

Fairy tale becomes reality

by John Hotzfield

What started out as a dream three years ago for Char Hensel has turned into a fairy tale for a number of under-privileged children in Winona. But this fairy tale, called One Step at A Time, (OSAAT) will never end if Hensel has her way.

"When I started One Step, it was a figment of my imagination," revealed Hensel, "but it's turned out to be bigger than I thought."

Hensel, who graduated from Winona State University (WSU) last May, started OSAAT in April of 1977. The program is designed to "work with school-aged children in Winona that are, socially disadvantaged or have financial, recreational and/or self-concept problems."

But OSAAT needed one main ingredient, volunteers, to be successful. That ingredient was supplied by students from the three colleges in Winona, The College of St. Teresa (CST), St. Mary's College (SMC) and Winona State University (WSU).

"Without students we wouldn't have a program," states Hensel.

Of the 66 volunteers that are currently working at OSAAT, 39 are from WSU, 16 from CST and four from SMC. The remaining seven come from the Winona community.

Hensel pointed out that most of the volunteers are recruited from the college classroom. She goes around and talks to the different classes. She said that there is a lack of interest by male students. Currently, most of the volunteers are women.

Hensel said that OSAAT mainly works with children from five to 18. Each volunteer is given one child, or "buddy," to work with. The children are referred to the organization from social service organizations or school counselors.

Terry Sheehan, a counselor at Winona Junior High School, said that "I've referred a lot of kids to One Step At A Time. 'We've (the junior high school) encouraged them (OSAAT) and backed them.' Sheehan said that she refers kids that are having "social problems" or "need reinforcement."

Hensel said that most of the kids they work with are having "communication problems" at home or with their peer groups or are having academic problems. "We've also dealt with a few runaways," she commented.

"Most of the kids come from low income families," disclosed Pat Ridout, the Assistant Director of OSAAT, "but that's not a rule by any means." "We go on need, not finances," stressed Hensel.

"Sometimes it's too late for us to step in," Hensel said, referring to older kids. "We can't be with them 24 hours. They still have to go back to the same environment."

For the kids that do need volunteers, or buddies, college students are essential. Currently there are more kids than there are volunteers, according to Hensel.

The kids that are in OSAAT need someone to "teach them things," according to Hensel. Sheehan declared that "The people (volunteers) are really dedicated. They are a young adult model." Sheehan said that the volunteers aren't going to change a child's lifestyle at the junior high level, but that they do "keep them out of trouble."

"I'm very impressed by their (the volunteers') loyalty," Sheehan asserted.

The volunteers, who work with their buddies for about one hour a week and attend a OSAAT group activity once a month, are there to "teach them (the kids) alternative things to do with their time besides smoke pot, drink or get into trouble," comments Hensel.

Barb Becker, who has been with OSAAT for three years, said that "getting him (her buddy) to talk" at Char Hensel, who founded One Step At A Time three years ago, goes through some information with Dianne McElmury.

Foreign Exchange program came from the United States Department of State via the AACTE. The money was used for materials, such as books, publications, audio-visual equipment and samples of student work. There has never been any outside support for personnel exchange.

The student on the Oslo Program is responsible for transportation. Additional expenses for personal needs are also the responsibility of the student. There is no charge for tuition or room and board. The students who participate must make accommodations for room and board for the guest student. At WSU this may mean either making provisions for the guest student at the WSU student's home for three quarters or paying the dorm fees for two quarters.

According to Rothe, "There are no dorms in Oslo. Students live in apartments much like those students who live off campus."

Students on these programs must carry a full load of 12 credits and maintain good work. Rothe enjoys the system of education here. "I can choose my own classes and make up my own program." In Norway, students must select a specific program without choice of classes.

Until 1975, when the Oslo Exchange Program summary came out, one Norwegian student married an American and four American exchange students married Norwegians. In all these cases the exchange student was a girl. This may say something about the romantic hazzards of this program.

However, according to Rothe, "Here, people think about marriage after college. In Norway, it's very rare for a person to be married before they are 25."

Language can be a barrier, especially to WSU students studying in Norway. For Rothe there was no barrier because the English language is a requirement for students in Norway. "At first there seemed to be no language problem, but then as time wore on more was demanded and it may be difficult at times to make myself be understood," said Rothe. He went on to say, "Slang is easy to understand, but hard to put into practice."

Each year the students put on an International Dinner. "The event is not a fund raiser. Its purpose is to create goodwill and let the campus and the area become familiar with the foreign students," said Markos.

Some educators feel that there will be one million foreign students studying in America by 1990 and speculate that this will help fill the classrooms that are left empty by the decreasing U.S. birth rate.

Markos feels the program at WSU is very successful. "There's no question about it," she said. "Many students at Winona State are born in surrounding areas of Minnesota with little or no exposure to ethnic groups. Through these programs students have an opportunity to interact."

first was her biggest problem. Becker, who is a senior recreation therapy major at WSU, has had the same buddy for all three years of her service at OSAAT.

But Becker, who spends about two hours a week with her buddy, said that her experience as a volunteer has been "really rewarding. 'I've seen a lot of growth in him. It's good for both of us.'"

After Becker leaves Winona, her buddy will be assigned a new volunteer.

Jenny Clement, a junior recreation therapy major at WSU, said that "It gives me satisfaction just knowing I've helped him (her eight-year-old buddy)." Clement also said her biggest problem was trying to get her buddy to talk. "I think he feels a lot more comfortable around me now than before."

Both Becker and Clement said that they spend most of their time with their buddies doing activities that don't cost anything. They said that games, coloring Easter eggs, basketball, bike riding and just talking are some of the activities they do together. Neither Becker or Clement has a car, and both said that in the winter transportation is a big problem.

Ridout, who is currently working about 25-30 hours a week at OSAAT, declared that "There is a lot of love in them (the volunteers). Maybe this is what volunteerism is all about." She added that "volunteerism has been great to me."

According to Hensel, volunteers average about 2,000 hours every three months at OSAAT. This averages out to 166 hours a week.

"They're (the volunteers) not fly-by-night," comments Sheehan.

Hensel has been executive director on OSAAT for all three years of its existence. All of her work has been volunteer up until this year, when she received a grant from Comprehensive Employment and Training Act CETA, a government project set up to fund short-term employment. Her grant runs out in September.

OSAAT is a member of the Winona Volunteer Services. October 1, 1979, OSAAT became incorporated and elected a board of directors. OSAAT has applied for state funding and will be applying for federal funding as soon as they are federally tax exempt by the IRS. The future of OSAAT depends on this funding, according to Hensel.

Hensel said that when OSAAT started, they had no plans for a future. But like all fairy tales, one thing led to another, and the story is progressing into a happy one, especially for the kids. Clement sums it up best: "It (OSAAT) lets them (the kids) know someone cares."

Public hearing scheduled on women's rights

The Winona Human Rights Commission is seeking individuals in the college community to give testimony at a public hearing to be held May 6 at the East Cafeteria, Kryzsko Commons from 6:30-9:00. The Minnesota Council on the Economic Status of Women, a state legislative advisory board, will conduct the hearing and will forward information gained from the testimony to the Legislative.

Women encountering economic difficulties in the areas of insurance, housing, credit or employment are urged to come forward with testimony about these experiences. Testimony will be informal and brief (5 - 10 minutes). The Council especially needs testimony from handicapped women and from women (students or instructors) who work part-time.

Anyone wishing to testify may receive further information by calling Winona Human Rights Department at City Hall 452-8550.

Editor's Note

The WSU Student Association's elections will be held on April 30th. Besides voting for the candidates, there will be a referendum on the ballot on the approval of the association's new constitution. The constitution is listed below, along with election procedures. Every student is entitled to run for the positions that are being voted on.

Preamble

We, the students of Winona State University (WSU) in order to improve our education both curricular and co-curricular, and to provide for self-governance hereby establish this constitution.

Article I - Name

The name of this organization shall be the Winona State University Student Association (WSUSA)

Article II - Authorization

The authoritative reference for this constitution are the statutes of the State of Minnesota and the provisions of State University Board Internal Rule 302.

Article III - Purpose

The purpose of this organization shall be to insure student rights and responsibilities as defined in State University Board Internal Rule 302.

Article IV - Membership

The Winona State University Student Association shall consist of all students enrolled for credit not represented by a WSU collective bargaining agent and not holding the rank of Dean or above.

Article V - Organization

Section 1: The duties of the officers:

A. President

1. Shall act as spokesperson of the Student Association to the Minnesota State University Student Association, the State University Board, and other agencies and boards.
 2. Shall see that the provisions of the Student Association Constitution are followed.
 3. Shall be the chairperson of the Student Meet & Discuss Team.
 4. Shall preside at Student Senate meetings and vote in case of a tie.
- B. Vice-President
1. Shall discharge the duties of the President in his/her absence or in the event that a vacancy occurs in the Presidency.

Section 2: The duties of the officers:

A. President

1. Shall act as spokesperson of the Student Association to the Minnesota State University Student Association, the State University Board, and other agencies and boards.
 2. Shall see that the provisions of the Student Association Constitutions are followed.
 3. Shall be the chairperson of the Student Meet & Discuss Team.
 4. Shall preside at Student Senate meetings and vote in case of a tie.
- B. Vice-President
1. Shall discharge the duties of the President in his/her absence or in the event that a vacancy occurs in the Presidency.
 2. Shall perform other duties as assigned by the President.
 3. Shall be coordinator and ex-officio member of all committees of the Student Association.
 4. Shall be the chairperson of the Executive Board meetings.
- C. Treasurer
1. Shall be the chairperson of the Student Activity Fund Committee.
 2. Shall prepare the Student Senate budget and submit and budget for Student Senate approval.
 3. Shall be responsible for the financial affairs of the Student Senate and its related activities.

Article V - Organization

Section 3: Eligibility requirements, term of office, and election procedures shall be in accordance with Article VII.

Section 4: A vacancy in the office of Vice-President or Treasurer shall be publicized and announced for two (2) academic weeks to the Student Association. The vacancy will be filled through a special election by the WSU Student Senate in accordance with procedures developed by the election committee as established in Article IX, Section 3. A vacancy in the office of President shall be filled by the Vice-President.

Article VI - Executive Board

Section 1: The executive board shall consist of the President, Vice-President, Treasurer, Secretary, chairpersons of the Student Services, Academic Affairs, Public Relations, and Legislative Affairs Committees and the Student Senate advisors.

Section 2: Duties of the executive board will be as defined in the Winona State University Student Association by-laws.

Article VII - Governing Agency

Section 1: The Student Senate shall be the principal agency for student participation in university policy development.

Section 2: Membership

- A. The Student Senate shall consist of members who are elected by the Student Association or appointed by the Student Senate.
- B. To be eligible for election as a senator or officer applicants must: 1. be members of the student association as defined in Article IV and currently enrolled with a minimum of eight (8) credits per quarter during the regular academic year.
2. Not be on academic or disciplinary probation.
- C. Student Senate elections shall be held as follows: 1. President, Vice-President, Treasurer, and six (6) senators from the senior, junior and sophomore classes, shall be elected by the Student Association between midterm and two (2) weeks prior to prior to spring quarter finals.
2. Two (2) graduate, six (6) freshmen, and three (3) at-large senators shall be elected by the student association before midterm of fall quarter. If no graduate senators are elected to fill the positions, the Student Senate may appoint two (2) at-large representatives.
- D. Term of Office:
1. Senators and officers elected spring quarter shall serve one calendar year beginning June 1.
 2. Senators elected fall quarter shall serve from the date of election to June 1 of the next calendar year.
- E. Advisors
- Two (2) advisors shall be chosen by the Student Senate, one (1) from the faculty and one (1) from the administration of WSU at the beginning of the academic year.

Article VII - Governing Agency

Section 3: Filling Vacancies

- A. Senator vacancies shall be publicized and announced to the Student Association for two (2) academic weeks. Interested students shall apply to the Student Senate and the Student Senate shall then vote to fill the vacancy in accordance with procedures developed by the elections committee as established in Article IX Section 4.
- B. Terms of newly appointed senators filling vacancies shall be from date of appointment until June 1 of that academic year.

Section 4: Student Senate Meetings

- A. Two-thirds (2/3) of the filled membership of the Student Senate shall constitute a quorum.
- B. The Student Senate shall hold regularly scheduled meetings as determined by the President of the WSU Student Senate, but not less than once every four academic weeks. The first meeting of the newly elected senate shall be called by the President of the Student Association by the second week of fall quarter.

C. Special meetings may be called at any time by the President of the Student Association. A special meeting may also be called on special petition of one hundred (100) students or the WSU President.

Section 5: Initiative and Referendum

A. The Senate shall develop rules concerning the format for resolutions and the validation of signatures on the petition.

B. Any petition introduced (Presented) at a regularly scheduled meeting of the Student Senate containing a draft resolution signed by ten (10) percent or one hundred (100) members of the WSUSA, whichever is smaller shall require the Senate to act on the presented resolution.

C. The Student Senate shall act on a presented resolution within fifteen (15) academic days of the date that the presented resolution is submitted to the Student Senate. If this resolution is defeated by the Student Senate it must be submitted for referendum to the Student Association within fifteen (15) academic days of the Senate vote.

D. The resolution shall become effective if at least ten (10) percent of the WSUSA membership cast their vote; and, if approved by a majority of said voters in the referendum.

E. If within thirty (30) academic days of the time a resolution is passed by the Student Senate, a petition against the resolution signed by ten (10) percent or one hundred (100) members of the WSUSA is presented, the resolution shall be suspended until it can be brought to a referendum. The referendum shall take place within fifteen (15) academic days of the date the opposing petition is submitted.

F. A valid referendum is one in which (10) percent of the WSUSA participates in voting on that referendum.

G. Referendums shall be administered by the Elections Committee in accordance with Article IX, Section 4.

H. A resolution or the content thereof which has failed a referendum may not be reintroduced for a period of one academic year.

Article VIII - Student Meet & Discuss Team

Section 1: The Student Meet & Discuss Team is an agency of the Student Association acting in accordance with the policies of the State University Board Rule 302, Section D.

Section 2: The Meet & Discuss Team shall consist of nine (9) members:

- A. The President of the WSU Student Association of his/her designee.

Budget hearings

Attention: Budget hearings for all Co-Curricular and non Co-Curricular clubs will be held on April 30th and May 2nd at 2:30 p.m.

Place: Dining room 'E' off the East Cafeteria

Reason: To decide the allocation of Student Activity Funds to prospective clubs and organizations for the fiscal year '81' (This will only be a recommendation to President Hanson)

Footnote: It is important that each prospective club is represented in the process of allocating funds. It is conceivable to say that you will have a better chance to receive near the requested amount of funds, if in fact you are present to elaborate and/or substantiate your request!

B. The President of IRHC or his/her designee.

C. Seven additional members will be designated by the President of the Student Senate.

D. These appointment will be for one (1) Meet & Discuss Team meeting only.

Section 3: A. The Meet & Discuss Team shall meet at least once per quarter: Special Meet

Article IX - Committees to the student association

Section 1: To be eligible as a committee member, a student must apply to and be accepted by the respective committee. Any student rejected for membership may appeal to the Student Senate at any regularly scheduled Senate meeting.

Section 2: Committees shall be responsible to the Student Senate and operate in accordance with the Student Senate and Committee By-laws.

Section 3: Committees shall be allowed the initiative of making their selections for advisors subject to the approval of the WSU Student Senate.

Section 4: Committees

Stoppard's one-acts 'blur reality'

by Lee R. Christopherson

I'm somewhat reluctant to criticize the two Tom Stoppard plays, After Magritte and The Real Inspector Hound, which were performed last week in the Dorothy B. Magnus Open Stage Theatre in the Performing Arts Center at Winona State University.

For one thing, Stoppard has blurred my sense of reality and I'm afraid that I might be shot like the critics in The Real Inspector Hound. For another, all the good critical lines were used up in "Hound"—if I were to speak of the "elan and eclat of the genre," I simply couldn't take myself seriously. For a third, I genuinely liked the plays—"Hound" in particular.

After Magritte began with a slide show of the artwork of Rene Magritte, the Belgian surrealist, to familiarize the audience with his style. This was necessary and helpful, as the play contained many visual allusions to Magritte's works. The play, cast in the form of a mystery, was a satire on reality and the individual's perception of it—a common theme with Magritte.

On the whole the acting was quite good—with Jane Burke as an aged tuba-fancier, and Mike Peterson as a confused and confusing police inspector, being particularly good. Excellent makeup designs by Jacque Reidelberger in this play and in Hound helped to enhance the believability of the characters.

If I have any complaints about After Magritte, they are that the timing of the delivery of lines seemed to be off the night I saw the play, and that the ostensibly British characters had difficulty maintaining their accents. Minor quibbles, at best.

The Real Inspector Hound began with a slide show also. This show concerned Agatha Christie, a British author of mysteries. I gather that Hound was written as something of an "homage" to Christie. The play is also a satire of the mystery genre, and of critics.

The play continued the breakdown of reality by opening with two critics preparing to observe the play being presented. Eventually the critics become participants in the play. (A statement that critics have vested interests in plays and so cannot be truly impartial?)

Everyone in the play talks in clichés: the actors in the jargon of a thousand whodunits and the critics in high-blown literary comparisons that are essentially meaningless. And the two mix, with the critics finally standing on stage speaking of suspects while two of the characters sit in the critics' box commenting on the performance they are witnessing.

It felt strange sitting there, taking notes, while the critics on the stage sat there, apparently also taking notes. Were they criticizing the play or the audience? Was I observing or was I part of the play? See what I mean about my sense of reality?

Again, the acting was very good, especially that of Steve Gwilt as the critic, Moon, and Richard Esvang as Moon's colleague, Birdboot. Their bickering and crossed conversations added to the mood of surrealism in the play and made a good play truly enjoyable. But their performances were only part of a cast in which the chemistry clicked to make a very memorable performance.

Senior exhibit ends; another begins

by Dan Day

As one senior art exhibit moves on, another one is just beginning to capture the imagination of those who visit Winona State's art gallery in Watkins Hall.

The "Jenny and Sara" display that was put on by Jennifer Mug-ford and Sara VanAllen closed on April 18, and a show featuring the works of WSU seniors Karen Ortiz Evans, Kim Lundberg, and Mickey Landaiche opened last Sunday, April 20, with a reception at the Gallery.

Both of these exhibits are a part of WSU's annual series of senior art shows. All of the participants are art majors, and are required to take an art seminar class taught by Dr. Charles Evans. This series of exhibits is an extension of the course. There will be a show, featuring two or more seniors, at each, every week and ending May 17. These displays begin every Sunday with a reception open to the public that features the artists and their respective creations.

Many of these works have taken the artists years to create, and this gives these students the opportunity to be publicly recognized for what they have done.

The Evans, Lundberg, Landaiche exhibit began last Sunday, April 20, and will run through Friday, April 25.

The public is invited to attend all of these senior exhibits in the Watkins Hall Art Gallery, including the receptions that will take place each Sunday from 3-5 p.m. in the showcase area. The gallery hours are 9 am to 5 pm weekdays, with no charge to those attending.

Editor's Note...The Winonan will be keeping its readers up to date on the senior art shows on display at the Watkins Art Gallery with a photo of the exhibits featured each week.

HOT TRAX

Bob Seger and the Silver Bullet Band "Against the Wind"

by Kevin Ridley

Bob Seger and the Silver Bullet Band have recorded their fourth album together, entitled Against the Wind. Seger has kicked out yet another energetic album filled with rockers and whiskey-voiced ballads about the wages of aging.

To have a full appreciation of Seger's efforts on his present album, one should understand that the 35-year old Detroit rocker has gone through many ups and down to achieve his present status. For 15 years Seger has been trying to capture the country's attention with his very well-rounded sound of Southern Michigan rock and roll. Bouncing from one band to another and going solo, it wasn't until his gold album Live Bullet that he started to receive national attention. In 1976 came the Night Moves album which many consider a classic. Prior to his Against the Wind album, he recorded Hollywood Nights in 1978. If Seger doesn't have the national attention that he so well deserves, the new album surely will do the trick.

Like all his other albums, Seger very smoothly blends his rowdy, no frills, kick it out type of tune with his deeply-rooted ballads.

The album starts out with "Horizontal Bop," a fun, high spirited tune describing a care-free party situation. "Someone bring the records/Someone get the brew/Someone get a house/Buddy we'll know what to do."

"Her Strut" is simply Seger to the core. Jamming it out about a lady "committed to major independence. She's a lady through and through." Despite her major independence, "They love to watch her strut." (Surely in favor of equal rights.)

"Long Twin Silver Line" is a rock and roll cooker describing the twin diesel train rolling non-stop across the big, bad U.S.A.

My favorite rocker is definitely "Betty Lou," a hopping, bopping 50's type tune with excellent saxophone work by Alto Reed.

But Seger has a sincere, realistic view on life as expressed by the lyrics in his mellow ballads. Deep-rooted lyrics combined with powerful vocals make "No Man's Land" worthy of a cold brew and some heavy contemplation. Some very strong insight on society.

"Against the wind," the title cut, is about trying to move ahead while keeping your sanity and integrity at the same time. Glen Frey of the Eagles does some tasty back-up vocals.

"Fire Lake" is probably the most kick back and listen tune on the album. A powerful tune, capable of easily evading the unthinking listener. Again Glen Frey sings back up vocals while joined by fellow Eagles Timothy B. Schmidt and Don Henley.

Seger, as often the case in previous albums, writes about relationships. Against the Wind is no exception along with "You'll Accompany Me," "Her Strut," "Good For Me," and "Betty Lou's Getting Out Tonight."

One of the finest live musicians around, Seger writes all of his music, sings all lead vocals and has several guitar solos. However, the Silver Bullet Band really adds zest and flavor to the music. The band this time out is Drew Abbott on lead guitar; David Teegarden, drums and percussion; Craig Frost (ex-Grand Funk member) on keyboards; Chris Cambell, bass and the crisp, energetic saxophone player Reed. Back up vocals by female singers Shaun Murphy, Kathy Lamb and Colleen Beaton, in addition to back up vocals by the Eagles and Little Feat's Bill Payne round off a cohesive sound.

In a recent Rolling Stone Magazine feature story, Seger was quoted as saying "I've wanted all along to be successful nationally, but on my own terms." "Against the Wind" should be the clincher. Strong lyrics, fine instrumentals and that typical Seger soul all combine for one admirable piece of rock n roll.

As the last song "Shining Brightly" indicates: "Futures looking good at last/Rough times are all in the past/Oh it's shining brightly/and I think it's going to last."

Hank Williams, Jr. "Whiskey Bent and Hell Bound"

by Steve Downer

Whiskey Bent and Hell Bound shows a Hank Williams that is more confident of his musical direction. Three producers worked on his last album. It contained such inconsistencies with his outlaw-country stand as the Bee Gees "To Love Somebody." Only one of those

Off The Record

by John J. Dalesandro

Wishing death on someone is not a very nice thing to do. The implications of such thoughts are far too self incriminating and unethical. It is even worse to wish death on yourself.

But who wants to live in this world today anyway? The prime lending rate is around 20%. Mortgage rates are at 14%. GM and Ford just let go of 27,000 employees respectively with more lay offs to come in other facets of business and industry. A depression is unavoidably on the way with a war sure to follow.

Yeah, when you think about it, death seems like a pretty welcome solution to the pressures and tensions of the world today. I only have one request, Lord. When I pass through the pearly gates, make me spend the rest of my eternal days in rock n' roll heaven.

If I am lucky enough to be placed in that corner of heaven where the great rock and rollers dwell, death would be a welcome sight—it would all be worth it just to sit next to Jimi Hendrix when he rips into his rendition of the "Star Spangled Banner."

Oh, I can see it now. As I am passing through the gates, I'm being serenaded by Tim Buckley on the left and Jim Croce on the right as Mamma Cass and Minnie Riperton sing the backing vocals.

And, as I pass by the gates, I come to a cloud where Buddy Holly and Elvis are crooning out sweet melodies from the fifties. Hey! What in the name of Little Richard is Bon Scott from AC/DC doing on the same cloud as Buddy and Elvis?

Cruisin' on the rhythms of the heavens, I ooze over the bridge of heavenly waters only to see Otis Redding "sittin' on the dock of the bay, Watchin' the tide roll away." Now there is a strange combination, Charles Mingus and Sid Vicious collaborating on some mystical riffs on cloud 13.

And then there is the cloud I've been waiting for. I can hear the shrieking vocals of Janis in the distance, and as I get closer, I can see her staccato movements in perfect synch with the music.

Janis begins to fade out while Jim Morrison takes over the lead vocals as he rips into "Riders on the Clouds." Right next to him, Duane Allman and Tommy Bolin are using every last voltage of lightning rods to power their high strung blues-rock guitars.

Lowell George is solemnly plucking a Fender-Rhodes while Keith Moon is pounding the devil out of a 34-piece drum set that St. Peter gave to him as a welcoming present. And as everybody jams on with relentless energy, Pops Feidler is conducting the entire extravaganza.

Well Lord, it's up to you now. All I can do is hope and pray that when my time comes, there is still enough room in rock n' roll heaven for me. Oh, by the way Lord, I'd like to make reservations for the 25th of December. Second row center for Bing Crosby's Christmas Special will suffice just fine. No festival seating if you please, Lord—remember what happened in Cincinatti.

producers, Jimmy Bowen, worked on this album. Thus, it is more consistent. This is a musician's album, not a producer's.

Another move that makes this album an improvement is the wealth of talent on it. Waylon Jennings' vocals help out, especially on the slow songs. Hank's voice is better suited to faster songs.

A tune that shows his limited vocal range is Gregg Allman's "Come and Go Blues." Allman has the pipes to make this slow-blues number work. Hank's delivery sounds contrived—a bad imitation of Allman. Yet it is a good number.

Usually, Hank's vocal delivery is similar to Waylon's. Maybe that's why the songs Hank wrote and Waylon sings here suit him so well. Waylon is in top form on "O.D.'D in Denver." This contains the basic

Brass band presents concert Sunday

The Chatfield Brass Band of Chatfield, Minnesota will present a concert at the Winona State University Performing Arts Center on Sunday April 27 at 3 p.m.

The band, which has been in existence since 1969, plays a variety of familiar band favorites and has played an average of 28 concerts and parades each year. Highlights from last year's concert schedule include an appearance at the American School Band Directors National Convention, a Minnesota Public Radio concert aired from Lake Harriet Bandshell in Minneapolis and the band's 6th annual appearance at the Minnesota State Fair.

If you like old fashioned band music to set your feet tapping, you won't want to miss this concert! The general public is invited to attend. No admission charge.

elements of Hank's songs: booze, drugs and women. Waylon's bemused vocals, delivered in retrospect, capture well the spirit of an overly-wild night.

"The Conversation" is another type of song that shows up on Hank's albums—one about his dad. It is a conversation between Hank and Waylon. It's not about "the habits, just the music and the man." The music does a slow, country-simmer, as they talk about Hank Sr. for a short while. Then they decide to "light up and move along."

Hank is an outlaw. He writes country music. Country music taps the feeling of a vast majority of Americans. Why else was Johnny Paycheck's "Take This Job and Shove It" so popular? "Tired of Being Johnny B. Good" (Gotta be Johnny Reb) is one of these songs. There's a nice banjo intro, then Hank growls that he's tired of dollar-a-gallon self-serve gasoline and "don't tell me to take a bus and turn down my thermostat, when your all ridin' around in jets and cadillacs." Right on, Hank!

There's even a tribute to Hank's female counterparts—"Outlaw Women." Waylon sings "In a lot of ways she's like me, she don't give a damn about society." J.P. Richardson's White Lightnin' is the only rocker on the record.

There are no pretensions here, as there are on so many albums. As Hank explains in "I don't have Anymore Love Songs," "It's hard to make up lines for things you don't do." Nice instrumental touches fill every song. Hank and his friends write, sing and play from the heart and that's right where this album will strike you.

Warriors rip Southwest twice

by Jim Kohner

WSU coach Gary Grob called his team's play during a two-game sweep over Southwest State probably as close to perfect as it could have been.

In the Warriors 13-1 and 5-1 wins over the Mustangs, they were perfect in the field, going twelve innings without committing an error.

Scot Ender and Brad Spitzack gave the Warriors two strong games on the mound, and the hitting, especially the power-hitting, was maybe the best it's been all year.

"It was pretty close to being perfect games for us," Grob said after the Warriors won their fifth conference game in six starts. "We had excellent pitching and some good timely hitting."

In the first game, the Warriors let their bats do the talking as they collected 12 hits and rolled to a 13-1 win in a game shortened to five innings due to the ten-run rule.

The Warrior bats got going right away in the bottom of the first inning as they erupted for five runs off the Mustang's hurler Les Gilbertson.

Steve Young led off the inning with a walk. He stole second and went to third on a single by Dan Hanson. Southwest's catcher tried to catch Hanson stealing second, but the ball was overthrown, allowing Young to score and Hanson to get to third.

Mike Pelach followed with a blast over the right-centerfield fence, putting the Warriors up 3-0.

After Ender grounded out, Mike Connor ripped a triple to dead centerfield. He came around to score on a single Clint Faas.

Faas went to second on an errant pick-off attempt. He went to third on Kurt Heinbigners groundout, and he came around to score when the throw to third was thrown away.

The Warriors added another run in the second on Hanson's second base hit of the day and Pelach's double.

Southwest got their only run of the game in the top of the third off Spitzack on a double by Rick Primos and a single by Denny Daniels.

Heinbigner scored a run for the Warriors in the bottom of the third on a wild pitch, then the Warriors put the game away in the fourth as they hammered relief pitcher Tom Gallery for six more runs.

Connor, Faas and Youngblom all had two-run hits that brought in the Warrior's final runs.

Youngblom was a big spark for the Warriors offense as he collected his first three hits of the year and also drove in two runs.

In the second game, Ender provided the Warriors with their second one-hit game of the year as he allowed only a run-producing single to Brian Gutzmann in the fifth inning.

Ender struck out nine Southwest hitters in the game, and he allowed only one walk, to raise his record to 3-1 on the year.

The Warriors and the Mustangs were tied at 1-1 going into the bottom of the fifth inning, but then the Warriors flexed their muscles and went for the long ball.

With two outs and Young on second, Connor belted a Pat Bushard pitch over the centerfield fence. Then after Faas walked, Heinbigner hit a blast off the pressbox in right-center for a home run and the 5-1 advantage.

"Connor's hit was timely as heck, and Heinbigner was overdue with his homer," Grob said. "This was one of the easier doubleheader wins we've had all year."

"This is the position we want to be going into the games with Mankato State," Grob said, commenting on the Warriors big doubleheader with the Mavericks on Tuesday.

On Wednesday, the Warriors swept a doubleheader from the University of Wisconsin-Platteville by 3-2 and 10-7 scores.

In the first game, the Warriors could manage only two hits off Larry Vanatta. But Vanatta's wildness in the bottom of the eighth inning cost the Pioneers the game.

Vanatta walked Youngblom, Young, and Manson all in a row in Softballers drop three of four

The Warrior women's softball team finally got their season under way last week and they ended the week with a 1-3 record.

The Warriors, who were snowed out of the first game of the season against Mankato State on April 12, travelled to Marshall on Tuesday and came out with a split in a doubleheader with Southwest State.

The Ponies won the first game 8-2, but the Warriors stormed back in the second game to take a 10-4 win.

Sue Shrum, one of the four seniors on this year's team, pitched a seven-hitter in the second game to pick up the victory.

Shrum had five strikeouts on the day, and she allowed only two walks in the game.

Lori Coffey sparked the Warriors in the second game as she collected three hits and drove in four runs.

Vera Vidos and Cindy Dondlinger both had two hits and two RBI's in the second game.

In the first game, Sue Thompson ran into one bad inning and Southwest capitalized on the opportunities.

Wendy Jacobs, Dondlinger, and Judy Paulson all had two hits for the Warriors in the first game.

On Saturday, the Warriors gave powerful St. Cloud State all the trouble they could ask for, but the Huskies still prevailed as they swept the doubleheader from the Warriors by scores of 4-2 and 5-4.

Thompson and Shrum picked up the hard-luck losses for Winona State, and Coffey highlighted the Warriors hitting by smacking a home run in the first game.

All four of the games last week were conference games, so the Warriors stand 1-3 in Northern Sun action.

On Wednesday, the women's softball team will take on Dr. Martin Luther College in a doubleheader at the West End Rec.

They will then travel to St. Peter on Saturday for a doubleheader with Gustavus Adolphus College.

There is only one other home date for the softball team this year. On April 29, they will host both Augsburg and UM-Duluth at the West End Rec.

JV baseball team wins six

The Winona State junior varsity baseball team is off to a fast start this year after winning all six of the games they played last week.

On Tuesday, Chuck Wais and Brad King picked up the pitching victories as the Warriors beat the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire by scores of 6-5 and 6-2.

Rich Meier had three hits in that game and Greg Garman and Bob Boesche each collected two hits in the first game.

On Wednesday, the WSU jaycee team topped Rochester Community College in a doubleheader by 8-3 and 4-0 scores.

In those games, Mike Tetzloff and Larry Ferguson picked up the victories on the mound. Jerr Valerie had three hits in the first game, and Meier had three hits in the second game to lead the Warriors.

Then on Friday, the Warrior jaycee team swept a pair of games from the University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse, taking the first game 9-2 and the second game 7-3.

Men golfers 18th in first meet

The Winona State men's golf team finished 18th out of 20 teams in the Southern Minnesota Collegiate Golf Invitational held last Friday and Saturday.

The University of Minnesota-Duluth won the meet with a two-day score of 597, while the Warrior's two-day score was 681.

Tim McNelis and Sam Drodofsky led the Warriors with a 36-hole total of 168. Joe Bissen was right behind with 169, Steve Whillock had 178, and Jerry Ferguson finished with a score 192.

The meet, which was held at the Mankato Golf Club on Friday and at the LeSeuer Country Club on Saturday, was the first of the year for the Warriors.

Bissen had the low score on the back nine holes on Saturday with his score of 35. And Whillock managed rounds of 44 and 41 on Saturday, despite playing with a sprained wrist.

The men's golf team will return to action this Friday when they travel to Luther College.

Men netters break even in busy week of play

by Jim Kohner

As the season wears on, the Winona State men's tennis team finds themselves very busy. Last week, the Warrior netters were involved in six meets, and they broke even by winning three.

On Monday, the Warriors had quite a struggle, but they topped St. Mary's by a 5-4 score for their second win over the Redmen this year.

That match had to be decided by the no. 1 doubles match between the Warrior's Randy Koehler and Jeff DeFrang and St. Mary's Doug Luebbe and Greg Kowles.

Luebbe and Kowles won the first set 7-6 and were leading 4-1 in the second set before the Warrior duo made their big comeback.

They battled back to win the second set 7-6, then wrapped the match up with a 6-3 win in the final set.

"Randy and Jeff just battled back and did a great job," WSU coach Bob Gunner said following the match. "We had to win two of the three doubles matches to win the meet. We showed that we can come back."

The Warriors no. 3 doubles team of Jim Van Deirse and Gary Hanley teamed up for a 6-4, 6-0 over St. Mary's Steve Radican and Ed Carroll.

In the singles matches, DeFrang won a hard-fought 6-3, 1-6, 7-5 decision over Kowles in the no. 2 singles match.

Van Deirse won his singles match with a 7-5, 6-4 win over Carroll, and Steve Krueger downed Radican 6-3, 6-3.

On Tuesday, the Warriors fell to St. Thomas by a score of 7-2.

DeFrang got the only win in singles matches as he beat the Tommies Randy Muetrel 6-1, 6-7, 6-2.

Koehler and DeFrang won the other match for the Warriors with a 7-6, 4-6, 7-5 win over Scott Grausnick and Dave Zarberry in the no. 1 doubles match.

"St. Thomas is a very strong team, but we didn't play up to par," Gunner said. "We made a lot of careless errors."

On Wednesday, Gunner did a little switching around with his line-up, and it seemed to have a positive effect as the Warriors beat Bethel College 7-2.

DeFrang, playing at no. 1 singles this time, beat Bethel's Wayne Abbott 6-3, 6-4.

At no. 2 singles, Koehler topped Kirk Smith 6-3, 6-4. Also winning their singles matches were Van Deirse, who beat Greg Kuntz 3-6, 6-2, 6-2, and Krueger, who beat Mike Kim 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

The Warriors swept the doubles matches as Koehler and Hanley beat Smith and Abbott 6-1, 6-1, DeFrang and Van Deirse stopped Kuntz and Pete Nelson 6-4, 6-1, and Bob Bliss and Henry Stockbridge downed Randy Englund and Mark Johnson 6-4, 6-3.

"Most of the matches this year, I've been guessing on the line-up," Gunner said. "We have a good nucleus. I changed the line-up so we don't change our attitude."

"What we need most is a good practice," Gunner went on to say. "All we've had time to do is play matches lately. We haven't had much practice on our doubles game, and it's starting to show."

The Warriors had good luck with the nonconference schools early in the week, but their luck changed a little on Friday and Saturday in a quadrangular meet held at Moorhead.

The Warriors were blanked 9-0 by both St. Cloud State and the University of Minnesota-Morris.

But the Warriors got a little revenge on Moorhead State as they beat the Dragons 6-3. Just two weeks ago, Moorhead got the upper hand on WSU, 5-4, in a match held at Mankato.

DeFrang, Hanley, Bliss and Krueger all won their singles matches, and the doubles teams of Koehler-DeFrang and Stockbridge-Krueger won their matches.

"St. Cloud and Morris are very strong teams," Gunner said. "They will be definite contenders for the NIC championship."

"Jeff (DeFrang) is playing real well for us at no. 1," Gunner said of the freshman from Lake City. "Koehler was having a lot of problems at no. 1, so I moved him down."

The Warriors, with its new line-up, now stand 3-3 on the year against conference schools.

The men's tennis team was to make up a match with the University of Wisconsin-Stout on Monday. They will then have a nine day lay-off, before taking on St. Olaf on April 30 at Northfield.

That will be their last meet of the season before the NIC Championship, which will be held May 1-3 in St. Cloud.

Last year, the men's tennis team finished last in the conference meet. But Gunner has seen a much improved team this year, and he's looking for a higher finish.

St. Cloud, St. Benedict's drop women's tennis team

by Jim Kohner

Winona State women's tennis coach Pat Sherman said before her team took off for St. Cloud last weekend that they would have to play fantastic to beat the Huskies.

St. Cloud, Sherman thought, would be the toughest team they played so far this season.

Against the Huskies, Sherman's squad found out just how tough St. Cloud really was as they dropped only their second match of the year to the Huskies by a 7-2 score.

The only victories for the Warriors came from Kathy Bull at no. 2 singles as she won by 6-2 and 6-4 scores.

The Warriors second doubles team of Sheri Boettcher and Lori Gianos got the other win with a 6-0, 6-4 win over St. Cloud's Teresa Spiering and Deb Tennant.

The Warriors didn't have much better luck against the College of St. Benedict's, which was also played on Saturday, as they dropped a 6-3 decision to them.

All the Warrior's points came out of doubles play in that match.

Bull and Peg Hayes teamed up for a 6-3, 6-3 win over St. Ben's Kathy Lenz and Pauline Lilly. Boettcher and Gianos downed Patty Oaster and Jo Merickel 6-7, 6-1, 6-1, and Linda Sharpe and Sharon Webster teamed up for a 6-7, 6-1, 6-3 win over Sue Baldus and Barb Pappenfuss.

On Thursday, Sherman got a chance to face her old team, the University of Wisconsin-River Falls.

Last year, River Falls beat the Warriors 5-4, but this year was a different story as the Warriors blanked River Falls 9-0.

"The team here is a much stronger team than last year," Sherman commented. "This whole team is doing real well."

In singles, Hayes downed Wendy Heffinger 6-2, 6-2 in the no. 1 singles match, and Bull beat Vicki Lewis by the identical score in the no. 2 singles match.

Boettcher, play at no. 3, breezed to a 6-1, 6-1 win over Julie Bunda, and Gianos had an easy time at no. 4 singles as she scored a 6-2, 6-0 triumph.

In the final two singles matches, Sharpe defeated Diane Marfiz 6-2, 6-0, and Webster blanked Margie Neitge 6-0, 6-0.

In doubles, Hayes and Bull downed Kate Jackson and Sue Knutson 6-0, 6-4, Boettcher and Gianos beat Julie Lammer and Gloria Carlson 6-1, 6-1, and Sharpe and Webster had a struggle, but they got by Jean Maher and Bunda by 6-2, 5-7, 7-5 scores.

In some exhibition matches, Annette Pelach of the Warriors downed Carolyn Kozub 6-1, 6-2, and Michelle Baar beat River Falls' Jane Ellis 6-0, 6-2.

In an exhibition doubles match, Pelach and Julie Zale teamed up to beat Heffinger and Lewis 6-2, 3-6, 6-3.

"As a team, we are playing real well now," Sherman said. "Our exhibition doubles team beat River Falls' top two singles players."

"I think we're just getting used to playing outside," Sherman went on to say. "That was only our second meet outside all year."

Last Tuesday, the women netters blanked Southwest State 9-0.

The women's tennis team will return to action this weekend when they compete in the Luther Invitational.

Mike Austin breaks javelin throw record

Mike Austin broke a Winona State school record in the javelin to highlight the men's track team's efforts at the Norseman Relays held last Saturday at Decorah, IA.

Austin threw the javelin 198 feet, breaking the school record that was established in 1928. His throw was good for fourth place.

Warrior coach Bob Keister didn't get the official results of the relays because the team left right after the meet, but he thought the Warriors probably finished around ninth or tenth place in the 14-team field.

The only other Warrior trackman to place in the races was Tony Schiller, who placed second in the 10,000 meters.

This weekend, the men's track team will travel to Des Moines to compete in the Drake Relays.

Women tracksters second at Luther Invitational

The women's track team continued its week-by-week improvement by placing second out of eight teams in Saturday's Luther Invitational held at Decorah, Iowa.

Central College of Iowa ran away with the first-place honors as scored 112½ points. The Warriors second-place score was 52½, and they were followed by the host team Luther with 50, Augustana College with 46, Wartburg College with 10, Dubuque University with nine, William Penn had eight, and Loras rounded out the field with two points.

The mile relay team set its third school record of the year by placing second in a time of 4:18. The foursome of Robin Holtzapple, Deb Wolpers, Dawn Miller, and Ann Kruger chopped more than three seconds off their previous best time of the year.

The Warriors two-mile relay team of Lori Johnson, Miller, Sue Peterson, and Kruger also placed second.

Holtzapple established a new school record in the outdoor mile. She came in second place in a record time of 5:30. Mary Bremer captured fourth in the same event.

In the long jump, Holtzapple's jump of 16 feet, two and three-fourths inches was good for third place, and teammate Lora Sharpe was fifth in the same event.

Susie Muelken, Barb Wall, and Holtzapple teamed up for a second-place finish in the shuttle hurdle relay.

The Warrior's 880-yard relay team of Muelken, Wall, Sharpe, and Kruger teamed up for a fourth-place finish.

Wolpers took a third-place finish in the high jump with a leap of five feet, and Marie Doherty came in fifth in the high jump with a jump of four feet, 10 inches.

Vicki Olson added a third-place finish in the discus with a throw of 115½ feet, and Ann Weinzierl placed fifth in the shot put with a throw of 33 feet.

In the 440, Miller was fifth, and the Warriors 440-yard relay team of Muelken, Wall, Sharpe, and Kruger came in fourth place.

And there was one more outdoor record that fell for the women's track team on Saturday. The mile medley relay team of Johnson, Lori Keil, Jody Baier, and Bremer established that feat with a fourth-place time of 4:46.

The women's track team will return to action on Wednesday when they travel to St. Cloud to take part in the St. Cloud State Invitational.

After that, they will have a week and a half off to prepare for the State Track Meet which will be held May 2 and 3 at Moorhead.

the eighth to force in the Warrior's winning run.

In the second game, Dave Bird got into trouble in the first inning by giving up four runs, but the Warriors didn't fold and came back to get the victory.

Faas provided the spark for the Warriors offense as he went three for four at the plate and drove in five of the 10 runs to lead the Warrior comeback. Faas highlighted his day with an inside-the-park homer in the sixth inning.

"Clint got us back in the game," Grob said of the junior outfielder. "But we didn't help the cause with all the mental mistakes we made."

The Warriors are now 5-1 in the conference and 13-5 overall. They will return to conference play this weekend when they travel to Bemidji State on Friday and Moorhead State on Saturday.

Things don't always go as WSU baseball coach Gary Grob wants them to go. But his Warriors did battle to win all four of their games last week.

Bull, Winona: a perfect match

by Mike Killeen

Winona has had its share of tennis champions over the past few years.

A couple of years ago, two Winona residents won individual championships at the Minnesota State High School tennis tournament during the fall season.

That same school year, but in the spring, another Winonan resident made a mark at a tennis championship at the collegiate level.

A relatively young doubles team of Kathy Bull and Peg Hayes, a sophomore-freshmen combination, startled the Minnesota Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (MAIAW) tennis tournament by grabbing a first place finish.

Since that time, Bull has flexed her collective muscles so to speak and has helped the Warriors become one of the more prominent tennis teams in the state.

Much like professional golfer Nancy Lopez Melton, Bull picked up tennis on her own while in high school.

"When I was 16, when most kids were out working (in summer), I was spending between six to eight hours a day on a tennis court or up against the wall hitting a ball," Bull observed recently.

It wasn't as if Bull didn't have anything to do in high school at Freeport, Illinois, that led her to taking up tennis. Bull was involved in three other sports at Freeport including volleyball, basketball and track.

"I had always enjoyed watching women's tennis. I grew up in the Chrissie Evert era," Bull said. "It (tennis) was something that you could participate in for a while."

Bull took to tennis like a duck to water during that first year. "After a year, you would have to pull me off the tennis courts," she commented with a grin.

All that playing left Bull in demand throughout Illinois to play tennis at some large schools in that area. However, all the schools wanted her to concentrate on one sport only—tennis.

"I knew that if I came here (Winona State) I could play volleyball, basketball and tennis. I think that was the biggest seller in coming here," Bull admitted.

Basketball was the first sport to fall by the wayside at WSU for Bull. "I didn't have anything left for tennis after the basketball season," Bull commented. "I put a lot into my tennis game, so I think it was a wise decision (to stop playing basketball)."

That marked a turning point for Bull during her sophomore year, who now had just tennis and volleyball to concentrate on.

Besides her accomplishments with the Warrior tennis team, Bull has also added several championships on her own during the summer in the northern Illinois area. Bull has been the area singles champ the last two years as well as being the defending doubles champion for the past five years.

But the high point of Bull's career, to this point, was her teaming with Hayes in winning the state doubles championship.

"Getting that state championship was something I had always dreamed about. That was the high point of my career-so far," Bull said.

But that last statement sums up what the future couple of weeks could hold for Bull, who graduates this spring with a degree in physical education.

Bull currently sports a 10-0 record as the Warriors number two singles player, and the Bull-Hayes tandem has a 7-3 mark.

"I don't look at records," Bull said matter-of-factly. "It really doesn't matter. Any player on any given day could be a state champion."

Bull has her "fingers crossed" in terms of another state championship, although just being a senior doesn't necessarily mean that she will advance to the regional competition.

"I'm not going to put a lot of pressure on me because I'm a senior," Bull said. "It does seem to scare some people because they're playing a senior. I have nothing to lose. I can go for broke."

Bull only has another two and a half weeks to go before the MAIAW championships start on May 9 and 10.

Who knows? Winona just may be
